Protecting God's Children for Adults

Where do I start?

School is starting soon and that means all those other activities for children are gearing up. Scouting, team sports, gymnastics, and dance classes are just a few of the programs that are available for children and young people. Regardless of how much or how little extracurricular activity is part of a child's life, one thing is certain—safety first must be the motto of parents, guardians, and other caring adults when choosing program activities for children and young people.

Knowing that, what is the best way for caring adults to make sure that programs are doing all they can do to make sure that children and young people have a safe and enjoyable experience?

In Step 3 of Protecting God's Children® for Adults, we recommend that adults and organizations "Monitor All Programs." For the most part, the emphasis in this step has been on overseeing programs on the premises of the church or school. However, as we begin to consider activities for the children in our lives, there is an opportunity to apply the principles of the program in the investigation and evaluation of programs and activities for our children.

As a caring adult, monitoring all programs should include three significant inquiries before you leave your child to participate.
